FREE GIRLS FORCED TO STEAL FOOD BY LOW WAGES AT THE FAIR

Prosecutor in the Case Gives Girls Square Deal and the Judge Lets Them Out on Probation—Say They Weren't Paid Enough to Live On.

Three State street store girls signed papers in Chief Probation Officer Houston's office today. The girls had been accused as thieves by J. J. Buehl, general sup't of The Fair. Buehl personally went to Harrison street court and, when the girls appeared personally asked Judge Rooney to send his three former grocery clerks of The Fair to the House of Correction.

All three girls told Judge Rooney they were guilty, they had stolen groceries and worked a regular system from January till May of this year. Each of the girls took home every week from 50 cents to a dollar's worth of things to eat. Such
